TOODLES

Toodles was a French Poodle. She was black from the tip of her upturned nose to the very end of her short straight tail.

Her short, curly hair was clipped in a very fashionable style. Her pedigree was longer than any other dog's on the block. What is a pedigree? It's a piece of paper on which is written the names of a show dog's mother and father, her grandparents, and great grandparents. Besides the pedigree, Toodles also had a collection of blue ribbons which she had won in Dog Shows all over the country

Because of this, Toodles was a very proud animal. When she walked down the block, she put her nose in the air

"Good morning," barked Tim, the great, big police dog. Toodles turned her head and did not answer

"Hello Toodles," said Rusty, the beautiful Irish Setter. But the French Poodle raised her nose disdainfully, and walked past without a whoof.

"Rusty never won first prize in a dog show," Toodles thought to herself. "And big Tim has never even been in a show. I don't need any friends. Besides I am much more beautiful, and much more famous than they."

Toodles walked all the way down to the end of the block. The same thing happened each time one of the dogs in the neighborhood greeted her. Toodles refused to answer. She found something wrong with every one of them.

The other dogs discussed Toodles among themselves

"It's true that Toodles is very beautiful," said Tim, "but she is much too proud and unfriendly. I think she must be taught a lesson. All the other dogs nodded. Together, they made a plan. "We'll leave her alone until she realizes friends are important!"

Pretty soon, Toodles discovered that she was very lonely, because she had no one to talk to. So, she decided that she would make friends with the other dogs, after all.

As she started to walk down the block, she called out, "Good morning, Tim." But the big police dog turned his head and refused to answer. Each time she said hello to another dog, the same thing happened. After she had walked all around the block, she felt very unhappy. For one whole week, the dogs carried out their plan of not speaking to Toodles. Toodles sat in her yard looking very lonesome.

At last, Rusty, the beautiful Irish Setter said, "I think Toodles has learned her lesson." All the dogs ran immediately to Toodle's yard.

"Now I understand," she said, "I was wrong to think I was better than you. No one can be happy without friends."

A DOG, A CAT and ENVY

Bushy was a dog who lived in a tiny house in the midst of a garden filled with flowers and trees and bushes. In back of this garden was a large white house with shiny windows and a red roof. It was here that Bushy's master and mistress made their home. It was here that Bushy's great enemy, Pringle, also lived.

Pringle was a fluffy gray cat in charge of the great white house. And, for this reason, Bushy hated her. For, although he was ruler of all the beauty in the garden, he was jealous of Pringle's power in the home. She would "meow" at him through the opened door, and look enviously at the bright, shining sun in the garden

Pringle wanted so much to change places with Bushy who could always be with the grass and flowers

But each, because they wanted what the other had, acted in an unfriendly way. Bushy would growl so, if Pringle started to come outdoors that she ran back through the door in terror

And Pringle was no better. She would haunch her back, and scratch with her claws upon the floor, if Bushy tried to enter her house.

"Ha, ha," Pringle would meow and laugh. "You are not good enough to enter the house, you dirty old dog."

Bushy barked furiously. "Why the sun would go behind a cloud if you were to come into my garden. You, with your everlasting vanity. No wonder you are cleaner than I. You do nothing all day but lick the dirt off your fur. I have many more important things to take care of." Bushy's tail wiggled in annoyance.

"Why, what do you do?" Pringle answered. "All I ever see you do is to lie on the ground and take sun baths."

"Why," Bushy growled, "I must see to it that thieves do not steal into the house, and that no one tramples on the flower beds. And what have you to do, pray tell, except admire yourself all the day?"

Pringle's body rippled in anger. "Why I must see to it that no mice get into the house, and no clumsy fool like yourself breaks any of the mistress' pretty things."

"Really," Bushy answered "Anyone could do that! What a silly job you have!"

"And yours requires no talent either!"

"Growl. Whoof," said Bushy, threateningly.

"Meeooow," moaned Pringle, raising her claws.

"Nasty cat," barked Bushy, "I dare you to see if you can do my work"

Pringle sniffed "That will be the easiest thing in the world Try and do mine and see what happens"

"All right," Bushy said. "Let's change positions for a week."

"Agreed," answered Pringle.

And so Pringle went out into the front garden and Bushy went into the house

That day, a group of children came visiting the big white house and cut a pathway through the beds of flowers.

"Meeow," protested Pringle, jumping at their feet. But they disregarded her

"Halt," she mewed, but it did no good. The flowers were trampled. And when the children entered the house and began playing, Bushy jumped up to greet them and knocked over a table full of dainty china dishes.

That evening Pringle shivered in Bushy's house. "Brrrr," she whispered. "It is cold." But in her heart she realized it wasn't wind that made her tremble. It was fear. The blackness around her appeared large and full of unknown terror The simple rustle of the leaves in the trees made her shake with alarm

'Oh to be back in the safe, warm house," she cried

But in the house Bushy was experiencing different things. A mouse poked its head into the room, and seeing that Pringle was not there, scampered bravely about the floor.

"Grruff," warned Bushy, running towards the mouse

The mouse laughed as Bushy's big body made a lunge for her. One paw slapped furiously at the mouse but the tiny mouse just chuckled and pranced out of the room to get his friends.

Bushy jumped after her but knocked a lamp over

Suddenly there was a stirring on the staircase. A light patter of feet came closer and closer.

"It is the mistress," Bushy thought. "What shall I do now?" He thought of hiding, but it was too late. She was already in the room.

"What is going on in here?" she asked. "Bushy! Why are you in the house? And my beautiful lamp and dishes are all broken!" Just then the mouse came into the room. "EEEEK," she screamed, pushing Bushy outside

He slunk back to his house and peeked in

There was Pringle, her eyes wide with fright

I-is th-that you, B-Bushy?" she meowed

"Mistress Pringle. It is I, Bushy. I have reconsidered. After all, you are a woman and should be in the home. Therefore, I will be generous and allow you to return.'

"You are most kind, Bushy," answered Pringle, "And perhaps you are right. I will go back to the house. But do not think it is because I could not do your job."

"Oh no," said Bushy, "nor must you think that I am not able to do yours."

'Of course not," said Pringle, scooting into his home

And in the future Pringle and Bushy were very good friends, and each respected the work of the other, knowing that they were in their proper places.

TRY TO WRITE THE CORRECT NAMES OF EACH OF THESE FIVE PICTURES AND THEN REARRANGE THEIR INITIALS TO SPELL A FIVE-LETTER BOYS FIRST NAME. CAN YOU DO IT ?

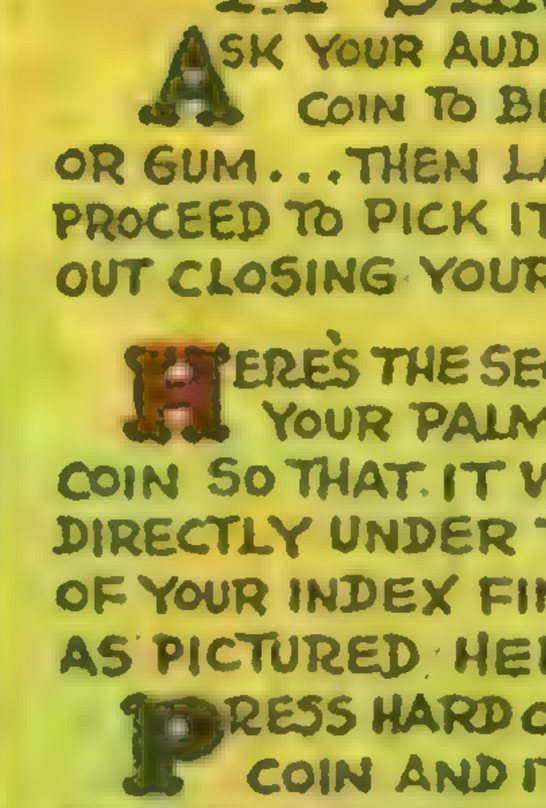

JERRY GIRAFFE JUST PRUNED FIVE TREES. IF YOU ADD THE NAMES OF THESE TREES ON THE ABOVE DASHES THE COMBINED LETTERS WILL FORM FIVE ENGLISH WORDS. WHAT ARE THE TREES?

A W NUGENT

WHAT IS MRS. CHARGET ORDERING FROM THE BUTCHER? IF YOU READ THE ABOVE PICTURES CORRECTLY YOU WILL FIND OUT.

TELL YOUR ATHLETIC FRIEND THAT YOU CAN JUMP BACKWARD FURTHER THAN HE CAN FORWARD IF HE DOES EXACTLY AS YOU DO THEN TO PROVE IT. GRASP YOUR TOES, BENDING THE KNEES IF NECESSARY, AND HOP BACKWARD A FEW INCHES. IF YOUR FRIEND GETS DOWN TO THE SAME POSITION, HE WILL FIND THAT WHEN HE TRIES TO JUMP FORWARD THAT HE CANNOT BUDGE AN INCH.

A Simple Coin Trick

ASK YOUR AUDIENCE TO EXAMINE YOUR HAND AND THE COIN TO BE SURE YOU ARE NOT USING SOAP, WAX OR GUM...THEN LAY THE COIN ON A FLAT SURFACE AND PROCEED TO PICK IT UP WITH THE PALM OF YOUR HAND WITHOUT CLOSING YOUR FINGERS.

HERE'S THE SECRET: PLACE YOUR PALM OVER THE COIN SO THAT IT WILL BE DIRECTLY UNDER THE JOINT OF YOUR INDEX FINGER AS PICTURED HERE.

PRESS HARD ON THE COIN AND IT WILL STICK TO THE MUSCLE OF THE JOINT. CLOSE THE HAND QUICKLY TO COVER UP THE SECRET.

BET YOUR FRIEND THAT YOU CAN MAKE THE WATER FLOW OUT OF A FILLED QT. BOTTLE IN LESS TIME THAN HE...AFTER HE HAS HAD HIS TURN YOU MAKE THE WATER RUN OUT ALMOST TWICE AS FAST BY SIMPLY ROTATING THE BOTTLE RAPIDLY AND THEN HOLDING IT STEADY.

TIME BOTH TRIALS
